REGULATING NEEDED

Last year farmers in central and northern Alberta couldn't get started in the spring because of the middle of May because the ground was so wet. This year they will be about finished seeding by that date, the ground has been so dry. The farmers who want to plant their crops with mathematical nicety, so that the supply will always just balance the demand, should start by regenerating the weather.

THE "CHISELING" SPIRIT

GUESTS in sixteen San Francisco hotels have been making their own beds and taking their own water, because of the water shortage. No man lives in their own beds in the complicated arrangements of our modern life. When one ceases to render a customary service, others are inconvenienced. The bed-making is emblematic of the interdependence that hedges about the lives of all of us.

How long will the self-serving quality stay in these hotels? Not very long, if they have to go on looking after themselves. And not many new arrivals will register there if they have to help do the house-work. It is safe enough to say that among the first to get out will be those who have least sympathy with the strikers. They won't stay just to help the hotel-owners win the fight.

No one so likes to be served, or is so exacting in his demands, as the one who thinks other people should serve him for low pay and put up with mean conditions.

DIVIDED COUNSELS

Britain's "National" Government is coming under the condemnation of the opposition, demanding a clear decision and serious action. A political reformer is sometimes necessary, when no party can obtain a working majority. And as long as nothing is required but that it follow established lines of policy, there may be little fault to find with it.

But when a crisis appears and leadership is called for, a coalition is by its very nature disqualified. Unity of judgment is in these circumstances essential to a group that must lead. When a crisis appears and when men want to go west, others east, and still other contingents would head north and south.

These three bodies—those to the East, those to the West, those to the South—have resulted in three body-blowers to the British Government. It lost one seat and won the other two by a majority of hundreds while the crisis was going on. It was a victory for the Government, but the Government would be little to say.

The charge leveled against the Ministry was that "it could not lead," that its foreign policy had been weak, wobbly and vacillating from Japan to Ethiopia to Spain. The fact that a former course might have landed Europe in war, and would almost certainly have meant death to British soldiers and sailors, did not count with the voters. They wanted leadership, and said so. "Why have a navy?" was the cry that expressed the sentiment of the voters, and accounts for the three-fold rebuff to the variously-minded coalition.

WHITTIER?

It is to be said for the Social Crediters that they can fight. It is to be said for the Social Crediters that they are not a bunch of brothers and sentimental philosophy to put up with a political "crap" he was badly mistaken. They are at it in the hammer and tongs, all over the province, pulling no punches and baring no punches. It is the liveliest free-for-all struggle for power ever held within the bounds of any political party in Western Canada. What the members said to and about each other in the legislature were only raising aloft. The real headlines started when the Social Crediters home and opened up in the school house and community hall.

When a rough and tumble football game is in progress it is the spectators on the sidelines who know best how the play is going. What thoughtful non-Social Crediters are wondering is what it is to follow a party that seems to be for it in something more than diverting. It is also diverting.

While the other provinces boast that they are making definite and fairly good progress toward recovery, the same cannot be said of this province. And, whether the little in the constitutional results in victory for the Government or for the Insurgents, what all seem to be for is, in either event, "To the uncertainty that is dampening business at present, there is added a prospect of still worse confusion to come, with continuing bad effects on the problem of making a living. Which problem, for the average man, has to take precedence over politics, prejudices and promises.

MORE DEBT

A point not yet over-looked in the enthusiasm over the spending or the making of the improvements, is that spending the sinking fund is just an easy way of pushing the city back further into debt.

The sinking fund money is not found money, or money donated to the city by bond-holders in token of their gratitude because the city has paid them every cent due in the past and has undertaken to pay every cent due in the future. It is money paid into the fund in years past by the taxpayers, for the purpose of retiring bonds as these fall due.

Instead of using the money for that purpose, council is to divert three millions of it to the city's capital improvements. This means that millions the taxpayers will have to pay over and over, with interest. The city's net debt now stands at $6 millions of dollars. It will be $9 millions when the three millions have been spent.

The same result would be produced if the three millions were used to pay off maturing bonds, as was intended, and new money borrowed at the same rates to make the planned improvements. That would be preferable, for the borrowing could be done without the taxpayers' consent. But unless it could borrow from the Dominion there is not much chance that the city could borrow the amount at the present time, at any rates.

The improvements to be made with this sinking fund money will not be monuments to Mr. Postle's benevolence. They will be reminders of a three million dollar increase in the city's debt, for the privilege of making which council accepted the debt-extension plan.

Fifty Years Ago

From the Files of the Edmonton Bulletin

Seeding has been going on briskly all week. The weather has been mild and dry. Little growth has yet.

Phil Noel, who has charge of the Edmonton telephone office during the absence of A. Taylor, has been stationed at the Edmonton office.

Wheat Products

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY
In today's article I am going to answer some of your questions about how wheat products may be used in the diet, and especially how bread may be used by a person in good health.

For the person doing hard work who is in good health, I strongly recommend the genuine whole wheat bread, which is labeled "entire grain." This type of bread may be labeled in various ways, and may be called "100 per cent whole wheat bread," "entire whole wheat," etc.

When buying your bread, look closely at the label and you will be able to select the kind which I recommend, made from the whole grain. This means that the bran, the minerals and the vitamins which Nature put into the grain have been left in it.

A loaf baked from the real whole wheat flour has a deliciously satisfying flavor which is different from that of any other kind of bread. When you are eating it, you are getting an honest food in a form which has proved entirely satisfactory in feeding human beings.

As a rule, a loaf of whole wheat bread is of a golden brown color, but the color of the loaf will vary depending upon whether light or dark wheat was used and you can not therefore be guided entirely by the color.

In using the entire wheat bread it is advisable correctly to combine it with other foods in order to get the greatest benefit from this valuable food. As bread is a staple in our diet, it is a good idea to eat it with non-starchy vegetables and one excellent way to use it is to take it for lunch with one or more cooked vegetables and one of the raw variety. For example, here is a splendid lunch: whole wheat bread with butter, cooked green beans, and raw celery.

You who must plan your diet will be glad to know that entire wheat bread may be used for sandwiches. When you are ready to pack the next lunch, go out in the kitchen, get a loaf of whole wheat bread and spread two slices with good fresh butter. Now add roasted peanut butter, tucked in a leaf of lettuce, and the sandwich is ready to eat. It is a perfect food covering everything it goes into the lunch. Or, get out the cheese, cut off a medium sized piece of tempting, yellow cheese and place the cheese in the sandwich. The best of the best is the all right to use whole wheat bread and cheese occasionally.

When you wish to make toast, which I recommend to be thoroughly destroyed, I suggest that you use white bread instead of the whole wheat and toast each slice all the way through until it is a golden brown. If you try to toast the whole wheat in this manner it may develop a slightly bitter taste. Use the entire whole wheat for lunch and use the white bread for toast.

Other wheat products which may be used are macaroni and spaghetti. Or, you may use whole wheat muffins. For breakfast, try the cereals made from wheat prepared in various ways. The "puffed" grain is delicious, too, as the whole wheat breaded biscuits. There are several wholesome breaded foods now available, all of which will make wheataffles offer another desirable change.

However, in using any of the wheat products, remember that wholesome as they are, they are nevertheless acid-forming and it is therefore a good plan to balance them by providing some of the alkaline-forming foods in the diet. These do not necessarily have to be used at the same meal, but should be used sometime during the day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—Mr. S. J. writes: "About four weeks ago I had a lump come in my leg; at first the doctor said it was a strain, now he says it is an abscess. He is giving me treatments but now the leg seems to burn a lot. Do you think the abscess will have to be lanced? Would it be impossible for me to advise you regarding treatment. I suggest that the best plan is for you to continue to consult the doctor in charge of the case. If you are unable to locate the abscess, he will do this for you."

ANSWER: The principal stricture vegetables are potatoes, Hubbard squash, green corn, large green peas, sweet potatoes, lima beans, etc.

QUESTION: Mrs. Ida O. writes to know: "Are potatoes considered and forming or alkaline forming?"

ANSWER: Potatoes have an alkaline reaction.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER
If you get peeved with your job over some unpleasant happening, ask yourself how you'd like to be as avatars in the German or Italian armies, sent out to butcher helpless, harmless non-combatant men, women and children. Trying to tell yourself that you were performing a duty to your leader couldn't deceive you into thinking you were anything but a cowardly murderer, preferring brutality to looting your liberty.

Among the Italians captured on the Guadalajara front was Major Luciano Silvia, of the Italian army. Mikhail Koltsov, correspondent of "Moscow," "Pravda," the following dialogue which occurred when Major Silvia was interrogated by Spanish government officers about his presence in Spain. "Why did you come to Spain to fight the Spanish people?" Major Silvia said frankly:

"I obey the commands of my government and fight for my country. I am an Italian who fights for his Italy."

"Did you know you were going to Spain when you left Italy?"

"Yes, I knew. All our chiefs, all the regiment and battalion commanders knew. This was a military command. We embarked in the battleship for Spain."

"How do you regard the war in Spain? Against whom is it being conducted?"

"It is a war of Spanish against Spaniards. 'Why then do you interfere in this war?'"

"We intervened in the interests of Italy. We are interested here in the fact that on the one side fascists are fighting against the democrats. We are concerned with the interests of Italy."

"For the sake of what Italian interests did you come here?"

"This, I cannot say. I came here under military discipline and orders from above. I am primarily a soldier and a soldier."

A similar statement was made by Romano Salvatore, a rank and file soldier of the 75th Italian Infantry, who was captured by the British. He had been sent by order of his superiors as a soldier in the army. "I am a soldier who is subject to orders," he said.

Search of Italian prisoners and among the documents at the headquarters of the Second Italian Army at Belgrade, the German 25th division, fled, leaving no doubt as to where the "Italians from above" came from.

On a prisoner was found an order, bearing the initials of the Italian government, reading as follows:

"By command of his majesty the king, you, Benito, son of Giuseppe, of the 1910 recruits, are called to arms. You are ordered to present this order to the command of Legion 38, in the town of Spezia, and to report to the commandant. You are to be paid a salary of 100 lire per month. According to law you will be liable to trial by tribunal if you fail to appear, without extenuating circumstances, at the prescribed date." Ciano Ferdinando.

Among the documents left by the Italian staff in its flight was one which gave the text of a telegram sent to General Masani by I. Duce himself. It reads:

"I report the following telegram sent to me by I. Duce: 'On board the steamship Pola on which I am voyaging to Ljubljana I received report of the big battles now taking place on the Guadalajara front. With a confident heart I am following the progress of the Italian army. I am convinced that the enthusiasm and determination of our legionnaires will overcome the resistance of the enemy. The destruction of the international forces will be a success of tremendous importance, and particularly a political success. Convey to the legionnaires that I am with them in spirit. Encourage them to continue their actions, which will be crowned with victory. Mussolini.'"

"Division General Masani" (Seal).

Despatch of German bombing planes and landing of German troops for the attack on the Basque, and these proofs that Italian troops were sent to Italy by Mussolini, reveals how the German propaganda placed on the words of the Fascist and Nazi dictators, who had agreed to non-intervention.

After all, what are a few lies when wholesale murder is being planned?

I don't want to intrude on Jack Kelly's domain, but a boxing friend sent me a story about "King" Levinsky's present visit to London, where last week he took a beating from George Dwyer as part of the Coronation feature.

The former Chicago fish-porter was a guest at a dinner of sportsmen with his manager, Lou Harvey. As the evening ended the master rose, raised his glass and said, "Gentlemen—the King."

All rose but the Kingfish. He sat there with a placid expression on his battered mug. "Stand up," whispered Len, "it's the toast to King George."

"I don't dare," fided from the Kingfish's face. "I can't die myself," he explained.

Monarchs of the ring are not always used to the ways of diplomacy.

When Marshal Foch, as former generalissimo of the Allied forces, visited United States at the close of the World War, a number of representative Americans were selected for presentation to the military hero. Among them was Jack Dempsey, whose service has been long grasped of the Marshal, looked at the visitor's array of ribbons and asked: "Was you in the war?"

Dempsey was doubtful, and had to be persuaded to join the gathering.

"What do I do?" he asked.

"Just stand in line. When the aide-de-camp calls out your name, step up and shake hands with Marshal Foch. Any name that is called into your mind and then step up," he was told.

Jack did as he was instructed. When his name was called he stepped up, held out his hand grasped that of the Marshal, looked at the visitor's array of ribbons and asked: "Was you in the war?"

"The German people seem determined to be either masters or slaves—dominant or in a state of collapse."—Lord Maitland.

SIDE GLANCES — By George Clark

Another landmark for this day is the capture of Oswego, N.Y., by Admiral Yoo and his party and by General Gordon Drummond and his party. This was on May 6, 1814, and much of the military credit for the victory can be given to the Glenora, which was captured by the British. The capture of the Glenora was the first of a series of victories which were won by the British in the war of 1812.

BRITISH, U.S. GIRLS CURTSEY TO MONARCHS

Many Canadians Will Make Debut At Second Court This Evening

LONDON, May 6.—Two hundred English debutantes, with 14 from the United States, were presented to Their Majesties last night at the first court reception of the new reign.

Tonight a second reception will be held when a number of Canadians will be presented. Other Canadians will be presented at the July 1 reception.

AT BUCKINGHAM

In shimmering gowns and glittering jewels the presentation passed before the King and Queen as they stood in front of the clock and received the girls in the royal drawing room. Queen Elizabeth wore a gown of gold brocade with a scroll design, emerald diamond and a cloth of gold train with embroidered jewel colored crystals, a tiara and necklaces of diamonds and rubies and the Order of the Garter.

The King wore the scarlet and gold uniform of a field marshal. Behind them in the royal circle stood the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, the Princess Royal, Lady Mount Carrington, the Earl and Countess of Athlone, Princess Helena Victoria and Princess Maria Louise.

The white and gold ballroom was decorated with roses and hydrangeas.

Mrs. Homer Cummings, wife of the United States attorney-general, was among the American women presented by Mrs. Robert W. Hughes, wife of the United States ambassador.

PAROLE BOARD FOR EACH PEN IS PROPOSED

Coast Penitentiary Has Suggestion For Group Prisoners

VANCOUVER, May 6.—Establishment of a separate parole board for each penitentiary in Canada and elimination of military atmosphere surrounding penal institutions were steps urged before the royal commission investigating Canada's penal system which concluded public sessions here yesterday.

The steps were proposed by Rev. J. Duggan Holden, executive secretary of the John Howard Society, an organization which aids in the rehabilitation of prisoners.

At FEDERAL PRISON The commission assumed its sessions at the British Columbia penitentiary at West Westminster.

In proposing establishment of a parole board in each penitentiary, Mr. Holden said where parole is dealt with from Ottawa there is not clear a contact with the problem as there would be with a local board.

R. C. McNeill, a board member, said a parole board system for each province might be developed by working under different policies and suggested it might be better to have a Dominion board composed of two men from each province.

RELEASED—MARKED: Rev. Holden said he hoped "the word will come when we will be able to demolish the atmosphere of penitentiaries and the authorities realize that it is possible to have efficient administration without the facade of a military background."

The society secretary said a prisoner released from confinement feels himself to be a "free man" and is liable to be "let out" on parole. He said that on order from Ottawa the insurance of discharge, lists monthly to the penitentiaries had ceased, police authorities still continued to receive the names of discharged men in another form.

Mr. McNeill said he saw no reason why the police should not have the information as they must protect society generally.

B.C. SOCRDS OFFERING MUCH TO ELECTORS

Balanced Budget, Dividend, Reduced Debt and Other Advantages

VANCOUVER, May 6.—The British Columbia Social Credit League in a statement today, said if a Social Credit government is elected at the provincial general election, June 1, it would automatically reduce British Columbia's present $20,000,000 debt. The statement said that the government in the event of federal election, resulting in any province loans advanced on relief expenditures during the past seven years, without making similar re-payments to the Pacific Coast province.

The Social Credit "covenant for honest, efficient government" would be the reduction would be "proportional" to payments to any other province.

Captain of Wichitas

Captain Smith—No. 6—is one of the greatest women basketball players in Alberta. She is the only woman who has competed in every one of the 10 National Amateur Athletic Union's tournaments and Captain Smith has been on no less than seven All-American lineups. She played guard and direct her club from that position. Besides being a brilliant member of the last line of defense, Captain Smith is rated third, every time she goes down the floor. Experienced, capable and handling a fast-breaking club, these Wichita girls may prove pretty good in the future. The Underwood report, emblematic of the International Women's Basketball championship. They'll be tough!

Hanson Pitted Against Keene in Return Match

St. Louis Grappler Out To Avenge Hanson's Trickery
Little grilling will be needed to pick the excitement of wrestling fans at the Memorial Hall Friday, when Charlie Keene meets Floyd Hanson in a return bout. The match will constitute the main event on Mike Cutcher's pro midweeknight card.
The memory of Hanson's victory will be needed to start him "ridin' Sweden" just to prove wrestling is the start of the rough stuff again and you can bet he will. It's a record under him.
Keene gave the burly Swede one of the toughest fights of his career here last Friday, standing in even footing as to falls before Hanson resorted to a subterfuge, which was bolder than clever, to capture the deciding throw.
The result of this bout Friday will be considered an important test for Hanson, who is expected to appear here on Cutcher's card, May 14.
Supporting this main event will be a semi-main event featuring no other than Abdul Kham, the terrifically terrible Turk. He will meet Mike Cutcher in a return bout. This bout after his victory over Jack Damer.
Damer should provide some hectic moments and with Jack punching around with that few dull moments will be had.
The card was again topped with a one fall professional between Jack Jackson and Earl in Velton.

Wallace Battles Genovese, May 14

TORONTO, May 6.—Gordon Wallace, Vancouver, Canadian welterweight champion, will meet Frankie Genovese, Toronto welter, on a Maple Leaf Gardens card May 14. Promoter Jack Goodman named the signed contracts for the title fight but he has failed to get the Ontario Athletic Commission Wednesday.

Paul Dean's Arm Goes Under Knife

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—Dr. Robert Boyd, operating at the St. Louis Hotel, removed a torn piece of Paul Dean's right arm in an effort to enable the St. Louis cardinal pitcher to fight effectively again. Perry Outlays Ellsworth Vines

CHICAGO, May 6.—England's First Heavy welterweight and out-maneuvred Ellsworth Vines Wednesday to achieve a 6-2, 6-4, 6-0 victory and reduce the tall Californian paragon of victories in their long personal tennis tour to one.

Unusual Theft

ST. HAZARE, France, May 6.—Police are investigating theft of the foundation stone of a new labor exchange here. A cylinder with a record of the assembly and a waxen placed on a war memorial, have also vanished.

West Enders Show Promise But Lose; May Revive Game

Experience, Passing of Jesuit Boys Tell on Miles Palmer's Crew; Hope to Organize More Teams for League
Miles Palmer's West End juniors got their baptism of fire in competitive box lacrosse last night when they dropped a 3-0 verdict to the more experienced Jesuit College squad in a history-making game on the college grounds.
The first bowl encounter, featuring a city team, in quite a number of years, the contest may be the start of a lacrosse revival in Edmonton with an awakening to the possibilities of lacrosse as a hockey customer, efforts are being made to organize a few teams in the city.
BOAST TEN TEAMS
Calgary already has about ten organized squads, in both junior and juvenile divisions and inter-city games could easily be arranged.
Lacrosse enthusiasts, now busy investigating possibilities, hope that at least two more junior teams will be formed in the city and that Miles Palmer is thinking of organizing junior teams.
An enthusiastic crowd of good lacrosse enthusiasts could be created with the existing number of the game, bowls might well experience a revival in Edmonton.

The West Enders, the first junior bowls team to have ever been organized in Edmonton, were definitely handicapped in the way of experience and practice and the college boys showed much more poise in passing and striking several drives.
There has never been any junior lacrosse in Edmonton for that reason the Jesuit team organized and coached by Miles Palmer, making history last night when they met the Jesuit College boys.

Junior Sportlights

By CECIL GOLDSTEIN
LACROSSE, the oldest form of bowls, Canada's national and original sport, was given a new start here last night when the Jesuit College triumphed the West End juniors, 3-0.
In the midst of the game was very little, but it meant a lot at least in the minds of those responsible for it. It meant the start of a revival drive for the game that got the start among the aborigines who inhabited Canada before the invasion of the white man.
There has never been any junior lacrosse in Edmonton for that reason the Jesuit team organized and coached by Miles Palmer, making history last night when they met the Jesuit College boys.

LINE EXHIBITION

Despite the fact that the field marked out in the college yard, was not enclosed, thus allowing the ball to roll out quite often, the game was a fine exhibition and well worth watching. With a few more practice under their belts, the West Enders should give a splendid account of themselves. After a few weeks with their new equipment, they only received last night, they should show more poise in winning the stick.
The colleges played with only the seven men required throughout the three 15-minute periods and had the game well in hand throughout. Pardee, Hill

Curious World

—By William Ferguson

The path of totality of the remarkable solar eclipse of June 8 will stretch over 5,000 miles of the earth's surface, yet it will touch no land except two small islands far out in the Pacific, and a section of Peru. This great astronomical show will be staged before an almost empty house.

REFUGEES TELL HARROWING FIRE STORIES

Flame Wall, 100 Feet High,
Is Hurled On Two Settlements

Pandemonium reigned when a raging fire torn with a shift of the wind and slammed a hundred-foot wall of flame directly on the villages of Norbuck and Trappier, 35 miles southwest of Edmonton at 2 a.m. Wednesday. Accounts of terror and suffering are told by refugees who fled from the fire-ravaged settlements.

Fire fighters had been watching the blaze in the timber drifting only half a mile west of the villages, believing they were safe, although not a person dared to sleep and residents stayed awake in their houses.

WIND BLOWS EAST
From a southeasterly direction the wind veered into the northwest and increased to a gale. Smoke, embers and shingles swept across the villages which are less than a mile apart, until inhabitants could scarcely breathe. They came out of their houses and yelled aloud.

One person shouted: "Beat it for your lives!"

Every truck and car available was commandeered and a steady stream of motor vehicles carrying as many as 15 and 20 passengers fled the inhabitants to Winfield.

A few remained trying to save their houses, but they finally had to flee.

Trucks rumbled on the villages and lifted at the huge piles of spruce and pine lumber piled on the village, the blaze leaping as high as 200 feet. Two 45-ton steel drums of gasoline on the Norbuck siding exploded and the blast burned burning pieces of lumber 300 feet.

Greated report of a building in Norbuck, given a Bulletin reporter by Helen Hinton of Norbuck who tried to save her house. He can drive to the little houses of Poplar Creek, close by, at the west side of the village and was caught there as the wind swept the flames across the road.

Playing hide-and-seek, he was forced to remain there for five hours. He said that the flames were so close that he could see them. He said that the flames were so close that he could see them.

THE Loyal Road TO THE CROWNATION

Their Majesties and Princess Elizabeth Attend the Richmond Agricultural Fair.

TO DAY'S picture of the King and Queen places them in the setting that many an Englishman far from the "light little life" in the west, it is rural England, and that anything in this little group of people, the King, Queen, and Princess Elizabeth, are attending the Richmond Agricultural Fair, which is the last of the season.

We have seen them in the past few weeks, and they were greatly different places, in miles and industrial centers, touring their vast empire, enjoying the sports and the everyday existence of their subjects. They were seen in the setting that many an Englishman far from the "light little life" in the west, it is rural England, and that anything in this little group of people, the King, Queen, and Princess Elizabeth, are attending the Richmond Agricultural Fair, which is the last of the season.
